How Lettuce Multi-Cut works

Multi-Cut Lettuces will re-shoot after the first harvest when they are cut back by two thirds of their mature height of 20-25cm. They will then produce a second crop within 4-6 weeks. To ensure that it re-shoots to its full potential avoid cutting back the lettuce right down to the base.

Under ideal weather conditions and fertilising regimes Multi-Cut Lettuces may even re-shoot for a third and final time if cut back slightly above the level of the original cut. Outstanding value from just one little seedling!

FAST FACTS:

Position: Full sun to part shade

Harvest: 5-6 weeks approx.
after planting

Height: 20-25cm

Spacing: 25-30cm apart.

Multi-Cut Lettuces are crisp and colourful and taste great – not too bitter, not too sweet. They are also easy to prepare. Simply use a sharp kitchen knife to cut your lettuce harvest, wash, rinse and a gourmet salad is only five minutes away. The leaves fall away from each other so readily—no pulling, no ripping and tearing involved.
